

Children in the Library

- Children should not be left unattended anywhere in the library; they must be accompanied by an adult at all times.
- Parents/guardians are expected to monitor their children's behavior. In order to maintain a quiet and studious atmosphere, the library does not allow loud talking, excessive conversation, running, or other inappropriate activities.
- Parents with crying children will be asked to exit the library until the child has been quieted.
- Children's use of library resources should be carefully supervised. Damage to library materials by a child is the responsibility of the accompanying adult. Furthermore, some library books or magazines may not be appropriate for use by children.
- Children are not allowed to use the computers. In addition, please be aware that the library does not monitor computer use. There is the possibility that children might view language or images on a computer screen that are not suitable for their age.
