DATABASES:

Information from books, journals, magazines and reference works is available in full-text from the following online databases. Save yourself some time; send articles to your e-mail account, and read them later. You can also access the databases from home, or any off-campus location through the Library Home Page. You will be asked to enter your name and seven-digit college ID number to access the following databases.

Latino American Experience

This database specializes in Latino American history and culture. It provides topical articles, biographical information, timelines, statistics, and primary sources such as documents, speeches, narratives, quotes, and more. Use the Quick Search box to locate information on a specific topic like, "Cinco de Mayo". You can add more search words in the Search within Results box or Filter your result list according to resource type.

Biography in Context

Look for information on the lives of famous Latino Americans here. You can enter the name of an individual in the Search box. If you do not have a particular person in mind, click on Browse People (top left), and select Hispanic Americans in the Choose a Category box. Depending on the person selected, you will find academic journal and magazine articles, links to audio/video files, images, and evaluated websites.

Diversity Studies Collection

This database contains articles from over 150 journals that explore topics such as cultural differences, contributions and influences. An Advanced Search allows you to combine keywords to locate articles on specific aspects of a topic, such as Mexican Americans AND education. From results list, you can limit the search even more by using options found in the right hand column, such as adding words in the Search within Results, or by selecting a particular type of resource, such as academic journals. On the other hand, a Subject Guide Search can help narrow a broad subject like racial profiling by providing a list of subdivisions, such as social aspects or investigations.

Academic Search Premier

The contents of thousands of magazines, academic journals and newspapers can be searched here. Use Advanced Search to narrow or broaden your search by combining words and phrases using Boolean operators like AND (to narrow) or OR (to broaden). For example, if you were researching the history of Latino Americans in the military, you could create a search by typing Latino Americans or Hispanics in the first search box and military or army in the second box. Search results can be refined by using options from the left column by limiting to date of publication and source type. The search results will be "updated" by eliminating articles that don't meet the additional criteria. As you search, notice that useful links to web sites, news sites, and images may appear in the right hand column of the results screen.

America: History and Life

This database provides an index of literature covering the history and culture of the United States and Canada from prehistory to the present. Accessing and search strategies suggested for Academic Search Premier above can be used here.

Opposing Viewpoints in Context

Articles from reference books, magazines, academic journals and more can be found here. You can do a basic search by typing keywords such as affirmative action in the search box at the top. Notice that the results come from different source types such as Viewpoint articles, Academic Journals, Images, Audio, News, Magazines, Reference books, and Websites. You can use the Search within Results box on the right of the screen to add terms to narrow your search. Use the Advanced Search for more complex searches such as Latino Americans AND employment.

Issues and Controversies

This database specializes in covering current controversial issues. It provides background information on many topics, as well as related news events; statistics; tables; graphs; pro/con arguments; primary documents and much more. You may search general or specific topics, such as immigration, or bilingual education or Cesar Chavez, etc.

E-BOOKS:

Use the E-Book Collection tab on the library Database Page to find complete books online. The library owns two groups of e-books that can be searched like a database. The Gale Virtual Reference Library is an excellent resource for finding thousands of full-text articles from electronic reference books such as The Encyclopedia of Race and Racism; The Encyclopedia of World Cultures; The Dictionary of American History; American Decades, and more. Additional books and chapters related to Hispanic Americans can be found in the Infobase eBooks.

Web Sites

Beware of the Web. Unless you are an expert on your topic, it might be difficult to know which web sites provide information that is accurate and objective. Click on the library's Web Evaluation page for help with evaluating the web sites. You can also find web sites that have already been evaluated by experts by searching the Internet Public Library (ipl2) listed under Best Websites.
