

GENERAL LIBRARY INFORMATION: Online Access Problems for SJCC Students

1. Why do I have to enter my student identification number when I get home? I don't need to when I am on-campus.

The SJCC Library has licensing agreements with database vendors concerning database usage. Only currently enrolled students can access them when off-campus.

2. When it asks for "college ID number", what should I type?

This is the same as your "student" ID number. It is the seven-digit number that is used as your official college identification number. Be careful to type your number exactly as it appears on your school records.

(Faculty & Staff: you may need to add zeroes to make seven-digits, e.g. 0001234.)

3. I go to SJCC, can I use the databases listed on the EVC Library web site?

No. Each college pays for its own databases. EVC students cannot use SJCC databases, and SJCC students cannot use EVC databases.

You might also have problems related to the following issues:

- Do you have a pop-up blocker on such as the Google Toolbar? If so, at the top, put the mouse over it and choose Always allow this site access.
- Is your name entered right? Is it your "official" name used on your school records?
- Do you have a firewall that restricts sites? Do you have McAfee System Guard? Do you have a spyware program? These may need to be turned off.

What should I do if I still can't get in?

- For Internet Explorer, go to Tools, go to Internet Options, Click on delete files (this will clear your cache).
- Close the browser down. Try again.
- Do not retype the password if it does not work the first time. It will continue to read two barcodes and never work.
- Call your ISP provider if you have problems with other sites.
- Call SJCC Library at either 288-2776 or 298-2181 ext 3899, or contact us through the email address on the library home page.
